“Maybe it’s the universe’s way of telling us to slow down, urging us to take a step back, and appreciate what we have, instead of chasing mindless pursuits! Maybe it’s nature’s ruse to get us to listen to the silence.

Maybe I should just stop deciphering the ways of nature, and appreciate this unexpected time at home!

My days are more stressful than it ever used to be. I’m on my toes, cooking, cleaning, feeding, working, the days seem endless. While I long to get back to normalcy, my eight-month is blissfully unaware of the chaos around him. He’s happy that his mother is around to pick him up every time he squeaks, he’s ecstatic that his dad is there to pamper him. And my only joy from all this is perhaps, I would see him take his first step, or hear him say his first word.

This time at home has taught all of us a valuable lesson – to appreciate and soak in the small, simple joys of life. Everything else is optional.

Let’s send out a silent prayer, or rather apology to the Universe. Let’s pray for things to get back to normal. Until then, we urge you to Stay Home, Stay Inspired with us!

For someone who has always been homeward bound, literally and figuratively, this lockdown means the world to me. Apart from the socio-economic crumbling and the mammoth strain on our public and medical services, this down time is perhaps the best thing to have happened to us in years. Pollution levels are down, Earth is healing, and Nature seems to be smiling again, albeit in slow motion.

However, my reasons are slightly more individual-driven and selfish. For one, everyone is home, without exceptions, and there's only that much time you can spend on your phones, computers and gaming devices. At some point, you will turn to the people around you. There will be no choice left but to make your peace and refocus your attention on the bonds that you had taken for granted.

Case in point: My mother and I.

My mother has never been able to understand what I do for a living. She loves the magazine, but she's never been able to understand what I "do" within the system. And all our conversations on the subject end with her blank stare and my exasperated head shake. It's been 20 years (yes, I started working on April 17, 2000) that she's been flipping through magazines that I've written for and edited, without really "understanding" what I do. Last week, post the country-wide lockdown, my mother finally got a chance to educate herself on the subject of my job. Every morning, she's been sitting quietly on the couch next to my window seat, and soaking in the organised chaos of my workday, no questions asked. And I'm loving it.

I have to say, I feel a different kind of proud to be able to work from home. I cannot tell you how much I appreciate being ABLE to keep an eye on my family, knowing that I'm accessible to my children as opposed to constantly hanging up on their noisy phone calls earlier. While I'm totally looking forward to getting back to the office, I do take a moment each day to be grateful for this unexpected kind of homecoming as well.

To all of you, I'd like to say welcome home! And that we're happy to be there with you, on inspiration duty.

So, I must confess, I do not subscribe to GoodHomes (yet), as I get to read all this amazing content on your website, www.goodhomes.co.in. I really love reading about the homes that get posted on the site...they are so inspirational, in the way they look and the way they function. I'm always amazed with the quality on the website, it's workable. So, thank you for that. I recently got a hold of the physical March copy of GoodHomes, and guys, I can't believe I've been missing out on so much. I'm going to subscribe, now. ## CELEBRATING GREY

I love colour, and I love how the magazine features homes that celebrate colours. Having said that, I am amazed with how soothing and vibrant the home by FADD is. It took me by surprise how grey could bring such joy to a home. Thank you for compiling such a varied scheme of homes for your readers. It inspires me to think out of my comfort zone, and perhaps paint a wall here or there, a cement grey.

— Vinita Chaudhary, Pune

You know, we will be honest with you...the Sushi Home by FADD design studio took us by surprise as well. We've always been fans of the work by Farah and Dhaval, but this was next level, and we couldn't be more chuffed that they chose GoodHomes to present it to the world. Thank you for appreciating our homes curation, we try our best to bring to our readers a diverse palette every issue. On a sidenote, your idea of painting the walls grey sounds interesting too. Do share your home photographs with us, we are always eager to see what our readers are up to. GH

Smita Thapar & Moksh Thapar

REINVENTING TRADITION

The artist duo is committed to creating art that heals and empowers spaces

FEATURE SEEMA SREEDHARAN

After practising independently for over a decade, and solving issues of form, function and aesthetics, both Smita and Moksh Thapar came to the realisation that the impact through design on the user's life could and should be far deeper and personal than it was. "We realised that the addition of a layer of art over our designs would bridge the gap. And we chose wood as our medium due to its impeccable versatility," informs Moksh.

"We were moved by the callous treatment of wood, simply because of its abundance," adds his partner Smita. "It is this commitment to creating meaningful design, and celebrating wood, that led to the inception of Studio smitamoksh — a research, design and manufacturing studio committed to designing wood products."

Both Smita and Moksh view design not just as designers but as philosophers, always seeking a greater meaning in what they are trying to achieve.

"We are seekers before designers. At every juncture in our professional journey, our introspection always led us to revisit our traditional roots. At Studio smitamoksh, we try to explore the inherent wisdom of heritage, arts and crafts which have evolved through the continuous interaction of human life with nature. We design by using the intelligence of nature with technology, making it our mission

We have always believed in creating products that don't just follow a traditional craft, but bring forth the essence of the craft and its tradition.

— Smita Thapar, Co-Founder, Studio smitamoksh

Our endeavour is to delve deeper into ancient wisdom, to bring forth a honed and simplified essence of human spirituality to uplift people's environments.

— Moksh Thapar,
Co-Founder, Studio smitamoksh

to tap into traditional wisdom and celebrate it in today's context," elucidates Moksh.

For the designer duo, it's all about creating art that heals and empowers spaces, by choosing subjects that can uplift the connection between the mind and the soul. "Our endeavour is to provide the viewer a complete spiritual experience while viewing our art," explains Smita.

For instance, in their Uttarayan 2020 Collection, they explored the traditional Pichhwai craft and identified its connection to the Vedic wisdom of Japyog (chanting). This gave them enough information to be able to create a positive resonance through visuals. They refer to it as the 'Visual Jap'.

Their interpretation, their vision, and the effect it has on the onlooker is obvious. It is difficult not to get lured into the world of intricate patterns, motifs, colours and narratives.

Ask them who is the thinker and who the creator, and Smita says, "Our partnership is the perfect pairing of a visionary and missionary, which the two of us have felt in our dynamic for the last few decades. Moksh's rich cultural background, in-depth knowledge of mythology, sharp and systemic analytical mind aids his passion to create a holistic vision."

"Smita conceives this vision into reality with her skills and extraordinary ability to visualise and create," Moksh is quick to add

Priyanka Narula

A NEW NARRATIVE

Architect and designer Priyanka Narula endeavours to bridge the gap between computational design and craftsmanship

FEATURE SEEMA SREEDHARAN

Priyanka Narula, the force behind Prelab Design Studio and The Wicker Story, is synonymous with weaving wicker into the contemporary Indian design lexicon. Whether it's the Imli bench or the Lifafa Chair, or retail design for Exotic Blooming Teas, Priyanka has always aimed at bridging the gap between computational design and craftsmanship. "From the time we launched Prelab Design Studio around seven years ago, we've been struggling between finding an identity, environmental sustainability, digital advancements in design and running a financially viable practise. I think, now, with both Prelab Design Studio and The Wicker Story, we are working on the convergence of all three aspects," says Priyanka.

She describes her style as clean, minimal, raw, organic and experiential. What is also obvious is how she celebrates and elevates the materials she works with and the craft she employs. Case in point is the Imli Bench.

"The intent was to make a fluid, soft furniture piece that is both art and function, local yet contemporary. The technique of cane weaving used to make the bench is traditional to most parts of India. The aim was to adapt the local technique to designs that appeal to the local and global market," informs Priyanka, who nurtured the dream of being an astrophysicist as a child, but went on to study architecture and design.

Designing for optimised need, optimised structure and minimised environmental impact - that's my basic principle.

— Priyanka Narula, Founder, Prelab Design Studio and The Wicker Story

I aim to adapt traditional techniques to designs that appeal to both the local and global markets.

— Priyanka Narula,
Founder, Prelab Design Studio and
The Wicker Story

The designer recently bagged the Trends Excellence Award for the Best Furniture Design for the Imli Bench and a Commendation for the Exotic Blooming Teas flagship store in the Retail Projects category. “We took inspiration from the tranquillity of a flower tea and translated it into fluidic elements of the tea store. We chose a raw material palette of wood and natural wicker against an aqua backdrop.”

In all her projects, you see a distinct, unmistakable reference to the past. Whether it's the Lifafa Chair which takes inspiration from the envelope, or the Muggu installation which takes inspiration from the traditional art form of Muggu in which patterns are created on the floor using coloured rice, dry flowers and rice powder.

“Before the onset of the digital age, the lifafa or the envelope meant so much. It meant love, apology, gratitude, all of this and more. And now, it's a chair,” says Priyanka. Inspired by the shape of an open envelope, the chair is both minimal and ergonomic. As far as Muggu is concerned, she takes a three dimensional approach to the traditional art form to create an interactive installation.

Ask her about her evolution as a designer, and she says, “The 3Es – exposure, experience and experimentation have been instrumental in shaping me as a designer.” GH

THE 3 E'S – EXPOSURE, EXPERIENCE AND EXPERIMENTATION – HAVE BEEN INSTRUMENTAL IN

Toxins, unsuspecting germs are hiding in your home and now is definitely not the time to sit back and let them be. These expert solutions are perfect if you're caught in the crosshairs of COVID-19

FEATURE NITJA IMMANUEL

Since the recent outbreak of coronavirus (COVID-19), our approach to the concept of hygiene has changed drastically. From deep cleaning homes to social distancing, the World Health Organization (WHO) is encouraging good personal hygiene and adjustment of social norms to reduce the spread of diseases. “Social distancing measures can help to reduce transmission and enable health systems to cope,” advises Dr. Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, Director-General, WHO. “But the most effective way to prevent infections and save lives is breaking the chain of transmission. And to do that, you must test and isolate,” he adds.

For most people, staying safe from the coronavirus means social isolation and working from home. “Considering the present state of affairs, working from home can be a huge relief so as to avoid unnecessary stress!” says Pankaj Poddar, co-founder of Mumbai-based interior design firm, Hipcouch. But infectious germs can live in your house too. We all know that simple measures such as handwashing, using sanitizers and disinfectant sprays can help curb its spread. But is there more we could be doing to promote healthy living for your home and family?

CLEAN AND CARE FOR YOUR SURFACES

Studies conducted by the WHO (including preliminary information on COVID-19) suggest that coronaviruses may persist on surfaces for a few hours or up to several days. We recommend using a two-step method – clean then disinfect – to tackle unclean surfaces such as counters, tabletops and bathroom surfaces and remove any dirt or food residue. Use a vacuum cleaner to brush under carpets. Why head to the gym when you can work up a sweat just by vacuuming instead? ►

USE ALLERGEN-FREE FABRICS

We all love the feel of crisp new linen, don't we? An excellent pro tip by Rohit Chaudhary of Amusing Interior is to use organic materials like khadi and avoid using plastics as much as you can to keep a home healthy. We are currently obsessing over IKEA's BOTANISK collection which is made from natural tactile materials. If you're looking to transform your interiors into an organic oasis, we say this is the best pick. You can also try Portico's Therapia Pillow and Mattress Protector which is 100% hypoallergenic and water-resistant.

DYSON'S PURE HOT+COOL AIR PURIFIER

INDOOR PURIFICATION

Dust particles, chemicals, and smoke may pollute the indoors and cause as much harm as they do outdoors, causing respiratory illness. Fortunately, innovative technology can scrub the air in your home clean and offer highly efficient filtration. Get your hands on Dyson's Pure Hot+Cool Air Purifier which automatically detects airborne particles and gases and improves air quality, promoting wellbeing and maintaining comfort levels in the home.

Worried about the quality of the water supply during the pandemic? While tap water is usually treated before being supplied to your home, there is no guarantee that water treatment plants operate with utmost reliability. Put your worries to rest and add Havell's Delite Alkaline Water Purifier to your coronavirus quarantine kit. The purifier boasts of an impressive eight-step process which eliminates all impurities, retaining the goodness of natural alkaline minerals.

It is important to make your home an oasis of calm in these uncertain times. For a breath of fresh air, adorn corners of your home with indoor plants such as Boston Fern, Snake Plant, English Ivy, Dracaena, Bamboo Palm, Dragon Tree, and Bird of Paradise that absorb harmful toxins from the air and release clean, fresh oxygen. ►

HOW TO CREATE AN IDEAL HOME-OFFICE QUARANTINE AREA

Social distancing is going to be a reality for many, for a relatively long time. Here are a few tips to make your home more conducive to a productive work scenario.

- ❖ An ideal home office,” according to Natasha, “must be a separate room with an attached washroom, or a spare room converted into an office space, with windows for ventilation and light.”
- ❖ “Don’t compromise on a good chair,” warns Pankaj. “Show yourself some love while picking out a well-designed, ergonomic chair that doesn’t give you backaches at the end of the day.”

❖ Colours can deeply impact an individual’s mood. “Make your home-office decor as cheerful as possible. Use warm colours like red, orange and yellow that eliminate workday blues and lift your mood instantly!” suggests Sonal.

❖ Who says work can’t be fun? Accessorise your workspace with cool notepads, colourful sticky notes and even a quirky coffee mug. “Creating a homely atmosphere can lend a sense of familiarity and increase your efficiency,” shares Priyanka.

❖ “A cluttered and packed home is difficult to not only manage but also keep healthy, so I encourage a less is more philosophy,” concludes Rohit.

ENSURING PERSONAL HYGIENE

Always air out and ventilate your home. Remember to avoid sharing household items, and wash used items thoroughly with soap and water.

Pay attention to shared devices that are used by the whole family. Home phone, remote controls and games console controllers, may also be microbe-magnets.

If it hasn’t been said enough, wash your hands often. Since staying home is the mantra, keeping your surroundings clean will help you stay clean, safe and healthy. GH

PENTHOUSE AT PLAY

An interesting contrast of design styles and textures defines this elegant penthouse by Sunita Yogesh

FEATURE TINA THAKRAR
PHOTOGRAPHS NAYAN SONI

An open plan space is not always as ideal as it sounds, and this home is proof. Designed for six family members, the home is large, and posed quite a challenge to Sunita Yogesh to design. But as she began piecing the home together, from concept to plan to execution, the cosiness the client so desired came to life.

THE CLIENT WANTED THE SPACE TO BE WARM, COSY AND PRIMARILY WHITE, WHICH WAS GREAT BECAUSE THAT WAY WE COULD BRING IN A LOT OF ELEMENTS TO ADD LIFE TO THE SPACE.

— Sunita Yogesh, Creative Director, Sunita Yogesh Studio

The area with the wooden rafters on the ceiling is the entire living room, broken into two sections. The dining room and the kitchen stand on the other side, with the main entryway between them and the living room. Placed in this division, mimicking an entry corridor is a black credenza with double mirrors.

MY FAVOURITE WAY TO ADD INTEREST, AND BRING COLOUR AND PATTERN INTO A SPACE IS THROUGH TEXTILES. WE LAYERED THE SPACE WITH RUGS AND CUSHIONS IN A VARIETY OF PATTERNS.

— Sunita Yogesh, Creative Director, Sunita Yogesh Studio

The bedrooms are simple, suited to their inhabitants, and have some cosy elements like a reading nook, wooden display shelves, a floating bookshelf, and in the playroom, a sofa-cum-bed.

SUNITA YOGESH

Creative Director, Sunita Yogesh Studio

A Sunita Yogesh-home is easy to identify - keep an eye out for a play of textures, colours, patterns in a modern, eclectic style. The full-service interior design based in Chennai helps its clients out with everything needed to make a space, from planning and conceptualising large homes and offices to creating bespoke pieces of furniture. An ardent user of handcrafted, earthy elements, Sunita has built an interesting repertoire of projects that are all unique in their own right.

WE WANTED TO KEEP THE DESIGN ORGANIC, AND MIXED IN QUITE A LOT OF STYLES TO ACHIEVE THAT ECLECTIC LOOK. THIS JUXAPOSITION IS WHAT MAKES THE HOME INTERESTING.

AS MUCH AS I LIKE EVERYTHING ABOUT THE PROJECT, I ABSOLUTELY FELL IN LOVE WITH THE BALCONY AND THE VIEW AND WANTED TO TURN IT INTO A SPACE WHERE THE CLIENT COULD ENTERTAIN FRIENDS.

— Sunita Yogesh, Creative Director, Sunita Yogesh Studio

hen a space is large and open-planned, like this site which was handed to designer Sunita Yogesh, bringing in the element of warmth becomes vital. Especially if it's a family home with three generations and a footprint large enough to accommodate their needs. Unperturbed by its size (3100sqft), and inspired by the array of possibilities before her, Sunita dived into the design process of transforming this Bengaluru-based, 16th floor, four-bedroom penthouse from a bare shell into a liveable home.

Sticking to one style seemed limiting, prompting Yogesh to bring in an interesting meld of mid-century meets modern meets traditional elements. With this, the house became organic and almost lived-in, which boded perfectly with the client's needs. Another interesting juxtaposition lies in the textures and colours. We see wood merged with iron and brass, and neutral colours propped beside deep greens, blues and tans.

It all starts with the anchoring space – the living room. It's not just a living room though. It's got a formal and informal lounge, a dining area and a light pastel kitchen tucked in the corner, with a breakfast nook. Wrapped around the expansive living room is a balcony, with an unhindered view of the city. Encasing this central area are the three bedrooms and the playroom.

When it came to accessorising, Sunita didn't hold back. The textile designer in her took charge, experimenting with materials and fabric pieces she's collected over the years. The layering doesn't stop here but progresses to the lighting as well. Though natural light is abundant, a warm evening vibe had Sunita's fancy. She added interesting pieces like a Sputnik chandelier and wall sconces, besides functional, concealed ceiling lights.

Designing this home was a step by step process for Sunita. But, its the warmth that ties it all together into one large homely package. GH

LIVING IN A KALEIDOSCOPE

Designer
Rohit Chaudhary
of Amusing Interior transforms a simple layout with a clever pairing of vibrant
and glossy colours,
and stunning design
detailing

FEATURE AVRIL NOEL D'SOUZA

PHOTOGRAPHS INCLINED STUDIO

A combination of modern and classic design elements are the hallmarks of this Noida-based home. Vibrant colours used throughout reflect the personalities of each member of the family living here.

When it comes to the very concept of colour blocking, Rohit has executed this design narrative cleverly. He has opted for large-scale applications of paint - from scaled-up accent walls, to ceiling-to-floor wardrobes in a uniform colour. The dollops of colour throughout the house are refreshing, and very brave.

“SOME ROOMS WERE SMALL AND THE CLIENT WANTED INTENSE SHADES ON THE WALLS. TO MAKE THE HOME LOOK SPACIOUS YET BEAUTIFUL, WE DESIGNED LIGHT WEIGHT FURNITURE IN SUBTLE COLOURS TO BALANCE THE OVERALL FEEL.”

— Rohit Chaudhary, Founder, Amusing Interior

“THE FURNITURE HAS BEEN CUSTOM DESIGNED AS PER THE REQUIREMENTS OF THIS HOME. EVEN THOUGH EVERY PIECE IS BASIC, WE’VE ELEVATED ITS STYLE. THAT TO ME IS WHAT MAKES IT LIVABLE LUXURY.”

— Rohit Chaudhary, Founder, Amusing Interior

ROHIT CHAUDHARY

Founder, Amusing Interior

Based in Noida, Amusing Interior was founded by interior designer Rohit Chaudhary in 2012. In just a short span, his design firm has acquired a large clientele from residential, to commercial, and hospitality. The designer and his team approach each project with the vision to create something unique. This project also reflects the design firm's ethos of bringing to life standout designs and interiors.

Rohit adds drama to every surface. From wall panellings to accent hanging pieces, and then to colour - every surface stands out, yet in harmony with the overall style. This was a love project for Rohit; he admits he loved conceptualising and executing the entire home. Plan-wise, he started with the bedrooms first and then moved to the kitchen.

The furniture designs are minimal, so Rohit decided to accentuate the beauty of this home by adding statement pieces such as wall art, hanging lights, a glass partition, a chandelier, CNC cutting design on the ceiling, etc. The drama of these details completes the look.

“ THE PINK DOORS WERE A LAST MINUTE DECISION AS WE WANTED TO MAKE THE HOME LOOK COLOURFUL AND CLASSIC AT THE SAME TIME. ”

— Rohit Chaudhary, Founder, Amusing Interior

Think of a colour, any colour on the rainbow, and chances of finding it here in this house, are aplenty. The designer, Rohit Chaudhary of Amusing Interior, has deftly used a smattering of principal colours and complementary hues...and the effect introduces a certain vitality to an otherwise simple layout. Says he, “The client wanted every room to look different with limited furniture but bright attractive wall colours to attract the attention of guests coming to their home. We wanted to create a bright, happy space for the couple.” The result is an amalgamation of fuschia and pink, with purples and lavender. Rohit layers tonalities of the same family of colours for an accented modern style. He plays with textures, gloss or matte, for more depth and precision to this clever arsenal of colour ranging.

Working with an insane amount of colours comes with its fair bit of challenges. Rohit reveals, some rooms are small in size, but had to reflect the client’s passion for intense shades. It is a task to make a home look spacious and beautiful in the merry company of deep colours, but Rohit remained unfazed. “We prepared lightweight furniture in subtle colours to balance the overall feel of the rooms.” That worked out beautifully.

We call this home a kaleidoscope for good reason. It has all kinds of colour, yet looks calm and beautiful. Every part of this home is designed keeping in mind the comfort of its owners and further perpetuating a soothing vibe. Home to the rainbow, this New Delhi residence.
